MINDY SCHEIER FOUNDER AND CEO

On behalf of the over one billion people around the world living with a disability, I thank you for joining us this evening to celebrate inclusion in Fashion. My journey to create Runway of Dreams began when my son Oliver, who has Muscular Dystrophy, wanted to wear jeans to school like his friends, but couldn't manage the buttons and zippers. I realized then that millions of people around the world must also be struggling to access fashionable clothing that meets their needs. I began to envision a world where all styles of clothing were available with modifications that would make them accessible for people with disabilities. Out of this desire, the Runway of Dreams Foundation was born.

Since then, in just six and a half short years, we've made international news, partnered with multiple global fashion brands to inspire change, and created innovative charitable programming that is addressing an enduring social problem for people with disabilities everywhere.

Thank you to the entire Runway of Dreams community. We applaud all who have joined the inclusive fashion movement and are thrilled to showcase some of those efforts this evening. We celebrate tonight's runway brands and encourage the continuance of innovative thinking. We thank our generous sponsors for their support, and most of all, we look forward to introducing our models! Together, we are elevating a community and impacting the lives of millions.

Regards,

Mindy Scheier

LOGAN ALDRIDGE HOST

Athlete, Adaptive Fitness Instructor & Adaptive Training Director

I have always been heavily involved in sports and physical activity. Growing up I stayed outside as much as possible. Throughout my childhood I played football, soccer, baseball, basketball and lacrosse. Also, coming from a family of water skiers, my earliest memories revolve around water sports. Because of this, I developed a deep love of wakeboarding and had real aspirations of pursuing the sport professionally.

My passions were in lacrosse and wakeboarding and I was committed to achieving excellence within those sports. After three years of playing lacrosse and training aggressively, I lost my left arm at the age of 13 in a traumatic boating/wakeboard rope accident.

I was left-handed. After the amputation of my left arm my biggest fear was that I was going to be labeled "disabled" or "handicapped". I wanted to make sure that everyone knew I was going to be the same person I was before and do the same things that I would have done with two arms. This was not going to control my life. Since my injury, I competed at an elite level in wakeboarding competitions, became an accomplished lacrosse player, written a book, started a career as a professional motivational speaker, and formed a business and nonprofit to help raise money for children's hospitals across the country so that others may have the exceptional quality of care like I received at UNC Children's Hospital after my accident.

My passion for fitness became an obsession out of necessity in order for me to be able to physically accomplish my goals as a wakeboarder, lacrosse player and overall athlete. I knew that in order to be competitive in sport I must be as physically fit as possible. I must KNOW that there is no way someone has outworked me.

For many years I lifted weights and conditioned myself often. As an adaptive athlete and coach, I have a unique perspective and approach to any obstacle or challenge. I am aware of a problem but recognize the solutions. I know about the difficulties, but believe they can be overcome. I see the negative, but accentuate the positive. When exposed to the worst, I expect the best. When there are reasons to complain, I prefer to smile. When it comes down to it, attitude is everything. If we can have this perspective our potential is truly endless and growth is inevitable in all aspects of life.

AHMRII JOHNSON SCHOLARSHIP WINNER

I come from a lineage of genetic, oral, and visual storytelling. The many truths of self are all accumulated through various acts of immersion into the soul of the world. For me, this is where I feel most connected to universal timelines, my ancestors, a higher self, and knowledge unseen but intrinsically felt. In this way, creativity has become one of the most profound sources of the wholeness and duality of humanity.

From elementary school I have used creation as a way to understand a world that could never truly be understood. I was fascinated with psychology, culture, communities, and the overall enigma of humanity (an experience of experiencing oneself through the connectivity of others). The work I create as an interdisciplinary artist and the service I take as a culture worker are all aspects of a holistic journey. I refer to my creative approach a 'autobiographical methodology' – an opportunity to critically study the generativity of my worldview, to write my selves into existence in a way that allows for 'complicated contradictions', double binds, and other dilemmas of the self [Denise Taliaferro Baszile]. This gives meaning to self exploration as a critical research methodology, and is a take on the philosophy of healing and re-discovering oneself in order to support the healing and wellness of others.

In the past year I have worked in the fields of special education, mental health through arts education, and sociological theory as a way to supplement the purpose of my work as a designer. My overall mission as a creative is to encourage people to realize their inner power, heighten their realities, and to find home within themselves.
